PREFACE

In the beginning, I want to state that this booklet is not a history of the church of Christ in Scottsboro, Alabama.

The church is the people, the body of the believers. A building is simply an expedient, a means of accomplishing an end - in this case, a gathering place for worshipers.

For a long time, I have been collecting articles, pictures, and information pertaining to this congregation. It is my desire, by this booklet, to preserve this material in such a way that we can long remember how our blessings today came to be.

(I wish I were able to write the history of the church here. I would love to have a panoramic picture of every member all the way back to 1884.)

I will mention some people whose Christian influence largely impacted my life. There are two precious ladies who come to my mind immediately. One sweet elderly lady walked several blocks (when no one picked her up) who dearly loved to wear corsages. Her granddaughter told me that on occasion years ago she would arrive early to the building on Peachtree Street and build the fire in the wood-burning stove. She was 97 years of age when she passed away. Another sweet, very quiet petite lady still walks to the building. Rain or shine, cold or hot, she is at Bible class and worship service.

I remember special song leaders and some of the favorite songs they led. There are special Bible class teachers - men whose classes I really enjoyed!

Again, the purpose of this booklet is to provide and preserve information that helps us to trace the development, progress and growth of the church in Scottsboro. I hope the booklet will be an important keepsake for years to come!

NEEDLE RESEARCH

A needle in a haystack....who can find---
With all the straw and twigs entwined!
A research project is a similar task,
When information is limited--no one left to ask.

For many years, I have sought to explore
The history of this church family who came before.
I think about a pioneer sister in her bonnet and homemade attire
And doubt that today's immodest apparel she would admire.
Or what an humble brother in overalls might say
About the men who don't get on their knees to pray!

These thoughts of mine leave me alone to guess--
Knowing that most people could really care less!
Changes come and life does not last.
Someday, we will be somebody's past.

The past is obscure; the future we can not see,
But, both will come together in eternity.
If we follow the "Old Paths" our forefathers trod,
Then the history we make will honor our God!

“GOD HAD BUT ONE SON AND HE WAS A PREACHER”*

I have chosen to include this page as a tribute to the hundreds of gospel preachers whose work has impacted my life.

Without the opportunity to hear gospel preaching, I would not be a Christian nor would I be interested in church history!

The earliest preachers in my memory were R. F. Kilpatrick, H. C. Geer, Ronny Johnson, Fred Dillon, and Jack Wilhelm. In addition to their sermons, I have benefited from articles or other publications they wrote.

In more recent years, my faith has been further strengthened by sermons and publications of Wayne Jackson and Ken Butterworth.

On this page, are alphabetically-arranged pictures of three preachers whose work most recently had a more direct and personal influence on my Christian walk.

To these three, I dedicate this booklet with love and gratitude for their years of unselfish sacrifice and honorable service in the Master's Kingdom.

CHRONOLOGY OF SOME MAJOR EVENTS

- 1815 First church of Christ in Alabama: Antioch, near Bridgeport, now Rocky Springs.
- 1819 On December 13, the Alabama Legislature created Jackson County.
- 1819 On December 14, Alabama became a state.
- 1884 On January 26, James Alexander Harding of Winchester, Kentucky began a gospel meeting in Scottsboro, Alabama. (He was born April 16, 1848.) The meetings were held in the Missionary Baptist Church house.
- 1884 On February 20, the Gospel Advocate printed an article written by James A. Harding which summarized the meeting in Scottsboro.
- 1884 Later, this year, J.W. Shepherd of Kentucky conducted another gospel meeting in the same place. As a result of these meetings, a small congregation of the church of Christ was organized in Scottsboro.
- 1885 B.C. Goodwin preached in Scottsboro.
- 1885 On August 31, for seventy-two dollars, trustees James Daniel, J.H. Gregory, and W.J. Rorex signed the deed for the purchase of 1/8 of an acre. (For several years, newspaper articles referred to this congregation as the Christian Church. According to reports, when J.M. Gainer preached here, he influenced the editors of the newspaper to use the name Church of Christ.)
- 1886 The congregation erected their first church building on Peachtree Street. At some point, the building burned and church members attended services out of town perhaps at Aspel/Zion's Rest.

- XXXX      A second church building was erected on Peachtree Street about the same spot as the first building. This building was used until a new building was erected on the corner of Charlotte and Broad Streets. (In a 2004 anniversary paper, Wendell Page, who had begun attending services there in January 1941, remembered there was no regular preacher for the congregation on Peachtree Street for every Sunday.)
- 1901      On November 11, the Alabama State Constitution was ratified.
- 1914      On July 28, World War I began; it ended on November 11, 1918.
- 1929      The Great Depression began on October 29 and ended on December 7, 1941.
- 1911,1919
1925, 1938      Other congregations of the church of Christ began in Guntersville, Woodville, Mt. Shade, Grant, and Simpson Point.
- 1939      World War II began on September 1 and ended on September 2, 1945
- 1950      On July 1, trustees C.S. Kennamer, Quitmon Howard, R.B. Derrick and Albert Parks signed a mortgage to borrow ten thousand and no/100 ($10,000.00) from Lawton Kennamer to purchase the lot at the intersection of Broad Street and Charlotte Avenue in Scottsboro, Alabama. (W.J. Derrick had owned that lot.)
- 1950      On September 3, 1950, the first service was held in the new building. Jack Wilhelm was the minister. (Jack was born August 12, 1930; Therefore, he was just 20 years of age. At the same time, he was a student at David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tennessee.)
- 1955      A minister's house was built on an adjoining lot just north of the church building. The first resident minister was Lindsay Allen who became the minister in July. Succeeding preachers who lived in that house at that location were Paul kidwell, W.A. Black, Robert Buchanan and Charles E. Cobb.

- 1967 In April, the preacher's house was moved from Broad Street to 406 Charlotte Avenue to make room for an annex to the church building.
- 1968 In September, the annex was completed. The design of this annex created an L-shaped auditorium with the addition facing South. There was a nursery with a rest room at the rear of the annex auditorium.
- 1978 On July 23, a ground-breaking ceremony was held for an extensive renovation of the church building.
- 1979 On Easter Sunday, April 15th, the first service was held in the new auditorium which is also the one presently in use.
- 1984 On May 27, the congregation celebrated the 100th anniversary of the church of Christ in Scottsboro.
- 1994 The parking lot was expanded and improved with accommodations for handicapped access.
- 1998 In September, the building formerly occupied by the Jackson County Health Department was purchased. It was renovated to provide offices and classrooms.
- 2000 In August, Nathan Bridges became the Director of the Learning Center. Extensive renovations were made of the annex area formerly occupied by the Health Center.
- 2001 In February, the Learning Center opened. Later this year, Nathan was called to active duty in the Air Force Reserve. His wife, Melissa (Cunningham) Bridges assumed the role of Director. Later, she was followed by Brenda Devers, Sue Bilke and Debra Wilhelm.

- 2002      The preacher's house was sold. (After Charles E. Cobb vacated the house in November, 1987, the house became the residence of Charles and Dot Curtis, then Johnny Mack and Kayren Young, and then for a short time, Terry and Kathy Broome.)
- 2003      Broad Street began participating in the Lads to Leaders program in December.
- 2004      On October 31, the congregation celebrated the 120th anniversary of the church of Christ in Scottsboro.
- 2017      Extensive renovations were made of the building formerly occupied by the Woods Cove church of Christ. It became the new Youth Center sometime in 2018.
- 2022      The former youth center in the former Gist Studio was sold early in this year.
- 2022      In March, the Learning Center closed after 22 years. Deborah Wilhelm had served as its Director for its last eighteen years.
- 2022      On May 22, Terry Broome announced his partial retirement pending the employment of a new minister. Terry and Kathy began their work at Broad Street in May 2002.

On the 26th of January, i. e. seventeen days ago, Bro. Daugherty and I began a series of meetings at this place. The meetings have been of unusual interest, and a report concerning them, I think, will furnish practical lessons that may be of much value.

Scottsboro has about one thousand inhabitants, six of whom—two gentlemen and four ladies—are connected with the reformation. We knew of only one of these, Bro. W. J. Rorex, until our arrival. Indeed he is the only brother in town, as our Bro. Daniel lives in the country near here. There are in the place four churches, Methodist, Baptist, Episcopal and Presbyterian. The Methodist is the largest, most influential and most popular one. The Methodist preacher, Mr. Whitten, is a man of considerable ability, and of great energy, both of body and mind. He is the popular preacher of the place. I have not heard any other of the speakers, and hence cannot testify of their powers. Bro. Rorex wrote to us before our arrival saying that he did not believe we could accomplish anything here, but he felt that it was, perhaps, our duty to try anyhow. This had but little effect upon me, for I have long since learned that no man can tell how a meeting will result. Indeed, at this writing, I have no idea how it will end. But the weather appeared so unfavorable at the time of the arrival of Bro. Rorex's communication, that I concluded to return to Kentucky and wait for a better time. Bro. Daugherty, however, suggested that, as it would not be out of my way, it would be wise for me to stop at Scottsboro and consider the prospects on the ground, promising to await for a telegram from me before making any further arrangements himself. This suggestion was so evidently a wise one it was adopted without discussion. Upon arriving at the place, I sought at once for the house of Bro. Rorex, where I was most heartily received. He was not willing to advise me to undertake the meeting, considering the time, labor and expense involved in the attempt, and the improbability of accomplishing anything; but then he was hardly willing for me to leave without trying to get a hearing. "We will go out and consult Bro. Daniel," said he. Bro. Daniel was much like Bro. Rorex. He wanted the preaching, but thought it almost a pity to waste our time. But Sister Daniel, dear woman, looked at her children, grown, but out of Christ, with wistful eyes, and said, "Oh, we must have the preaching, Bro. Harding; so few brethren visit us it will not do to let the opportunity pass." And I thought I could hear the pleadings of her heart in her voice, and could see anxious solicitude in her eyes, so I thought we will try any how; who knows but that her heart may be made to rejoice in receiving her children into Christ (We baptized one of them yesterday morning.) So I telegraphed Bro. Daugherty to come: to stop by Huntsville on his way, and to bring us a package of cards for advertising. We made arrangements with the printer, and had the type set by the time he arrived with the cards, announcing our meetings, giving the subjects to be discussed for the ensuing week, and inviting the people out to hear the "Kentucky Evangelists, Disciples of Christ." By four o'clock in the afternoon we had a card in every house in town, and one in the hands of almost every man. That night, being Saturday we had a fair audience; on the next day we had two large ones. By the way, that was one of the best days work I ever did. Bro. Rorex was sick, hence everything devolved upon us. Bro. Daugherty and I built the fires, lighted the lamps, swept out the meeting house twice, rang the bells, and attended four meetings, three of which we conducted, he leading the singing and I doing the preaching; then at night I took the midnight train for Huntsville, where I was expected to attend a funeral on the next day, arriving at my my [sic] room at the hotel in that town at half past two in the morning.

I remember thinking that I was very badly treated once while holding a meeting in Jefferson county Ky., because I had occasionally to attend to the lamps, sweep the house and build the fires., But, bless you, I have gotten bravely over all that, A man need not expect to succeed in places where we have few or no workers connected with our restitution movement, unless he is willing to advertise freely "at his" own expense, to furnish the fuel and oil, to build fires, ring bells, sweep houses, and, when [sic] nessary, to speak to small audiences without getting the ."blues," or complaining. He must make up his mind to have all sorts of doctrines attributed to him, and all sorts of stories told about him; and the very first time he shows his temper, or becomes despondent, he injures his cause.

Well, our meetings continued and the Lord gave us favor with the people. Night after night full .houses greeted us, and they gave the most marked attention. Preachers, members, and people who had not been in a meeting-house before for ten years came night after night. And it was a matter of common remark that such large, interested and quiet audiences had not been known before in Scottsboro. Our services are conducted about thus: A half hour is devoted to a song service. No time is spent in hunting songs; as soon as one is sung another is called out. Bro. Daugherty stands before the audience during this half hour leading and directing the music; here, excepting my assistance on the bass, he has had it pretty much all to do. Then we read a chapter and have a short prayer. After another song the sermon follows, generally something less than an hour in length; then an invitation song, and then the congregation is dismissed. Thus our services are generally conducted in about an hour and a half; but every bit of this time is utilized. No harrowing death-bed scenes are told, no shouting, yellings, howlings or kickings at the Lord, as though he were deaf, or had gone a hunting, or were asleep, are indulged in. We endeavor to sing the truth to the people and to speak it to them in earnestness and love; then we leave the matter with them; for if the truth makes them free, they shall be free indeed.

On the tenth day of the meeting Bro. Metcalfe, who had been with us over Sunday, left us in a rather despondent mood, I thought, indeed, he said, he feared we would not move any to obedience. On the way to the train he told Bro. Daugherty to "tell Bro. Harding to put a little more sugar in his exhortations?" But I confess I do not "shake as hard" as I used to do. If the truth does not bring the people, God forbid that they should come. So I make it my sole object in presenting to get a clear understanding of the word of God into the minds and hearts of the people, I do not try to move them at all, except in this indirect way.

On the eleventh day, a gentleman came forth to stand with us on the "union ground;" on the twelfth day, a gentleman and lady, both Methodists, came forward; on the next day, a lady of the Methodist church made the confession at the water; there have been two confessions since, one from the Methodists and one from the world, making six additions in all up to this time.

Upon going around to see the first young lady who confessed about her baptism, for the rain was pouring down in torrents as the time appointed drew near, giving us abundant water much nearer than was the place which we expected to go, I found the Methodist minister in consultation with her. He was advising her not to be hasty, but make it a matter of reading and prayer and meditation before acting. Upon coming in he said to me, after the usual salutations, "Bro. Harding, if you had been content to exert yourself in the conversion of sinners—of those who have never professed religion—I would not have said a word, but when "I heard-you were about to take one of my flock, I came-'around to see about it, and to preserve it entire if I can. He then proposed to the young lady to immerse her, if that were the only trouble. Of course I showed him it was my desire to convert people from error whenever I find them in anywise afflicted by it. He seemed somewhat astonished, I thought, at the readiness with which I expressed the conviction that the Methodist church teaches and practices grave errors; and a brief discussion followed, which resulting in my proposing to meet him or any gentleman whom he might secure for the work in a public discussion. This he declined to accept on the ground that no good would result from such a discussion,, In this idea he is strictly and literally correct, too, in so far as the cause of Methodism is concerned ; for it never obtains any benefit from a discussion with us. Upon arising to leave, I said to the young lady, "If you have any doubt about what is your duty, I advise you to pause, to pray, read and consider until the doubt is removed; but if your mind is settled about this matter, if you see your way clearly, act, regardless of what any body may say or do." She promptly responded, "I will be immersed at once," and she was. It required no little courage and devotion on her part to leave father, mother, grandmother, kindred, and a large and popular church, which has a comfortable church-house, simply because her sense of duty demanded that she should go else where. May God bless her, protect her, and guide her into his everlasting kingdom. "

The interest is now intense. Everybody is talking about the meetings. It is estimated that more reading of the Bible has been done within the last seventeen days than in many months before. Sunday school children, in pædobaptisit Sunday-schools, conduct vigorous discussion with their teachers on the action and subjects of baptism, and get the better of their seniors too. I was told that "the pastor" of the Baptist church (in whose house we are holding forth) said, "These meetings will do good, for they have gotten the people to reading the Bible as never before, and that in certainly good. The end is not yet.

Jack Wilhelm, a Scottsboro native, was born August 12, 1930. His first regular preaching duties were with the Larkinsville congregation. He graduated from Scottsboro High School as Senior class president in 1948.

After leaving the Larkinsville congregation, he began preaching for the Broad St. congregation in 1949. At the same time, he was a student at David Lipscomb College in Nashville, Tennessee. He received his Bachelor Degree in 1952. Next, is an interesting excerpt from "The Scottsboro News", the church bulletin that he edited.

On July 29, 1951, he printed in the bulletin:

"LAST SUNDAY WAS A FINE DAY: Of course, it could have been better, (and we hope to improve), but last Sunday was encouraging to us when we saw an increase of 26 in Bible Study classes, making 156, and a 180 at 11 o'clock with a contribution of $280.00. We recognize and appreciate the part you had in this work and in your fine co-operation for the morning broadcast. Let's keep the spirits of co-operation and love working for a bigger and better schedule of work."

At this time, there were no copy machines but a mimeograph machine to make copies that were typed on stencils (and very difficult to make typing corrections).

Quitman Howard and C. S. Kennamer are listed as elders and Delbert Chandler, R. B. Derrick, W. J. Derrick and Sanford Roberts as deacons. Albert Parks was the treasurer.

(See Chronology of some major events for 1955 for more information about the preacher's house.)

For this page, focus on the steps from Broad Street up into the lobby entrance.

The steps were a popular attraction for children who loved to play on them and for large crowds of people who used them from which to view parades.

In the former location of the preacher's house, an annex was added. The annex was completed in September, 1968.

ON JULY 23, 1978, A GROUND-BREAKING CEREMONY WAS HELD TO MAKE ROOM FOR AN EXTENSIVE RENOVATION OF THE CHURCH BUILDING

The following pages are listings of names, dates of birth and dates of death (as information is available) of those who have attended as members, extended family or friends of the church of Christ in Scottsboro, Alabama.

No claim is made that this list includes everybody. Other information is not available to me.

This booklet has been a long time in the making. Special gratitude to those who encouraged me (Jean Strickland, Jane Burgess, Roxie Wright) and to Terry Broome for his advice and/or suggestions and to Wendy Baird for providing updates on listings of elders and deacons.

In all probability, there are typographical and/or factual errors. None of these are intentional.

My research was restricted to that which is available to me. There apparently were no concerted efforts to store church bulletins prior to late 1979. There was no internet for the earliest history of this congregation; I do not have nor use a computer.

This booklet is a gift from me to my church family at Broad Street. No expense in its production/printing came from the church treasury. I do not seek attention nor am I boasting; This is for your understanding.
